If you are waiting on a response to e-mail I must apologise. There has apparently been a problem with my hosting companies webserver. I have had virtually no mail since just before Christmas and though it was due to the financial crisis and Christmas expenses causing you to not want chastity belts at the moment. Last week there were suddenly about 100 e-mails in the inbox with dates going back to December 2009 that must have been held up in a mail queue for some reason. I am working through them now.

oks like I won't be in the workshop as much as I would like
